

APACALL Online Symposium 2024

25 October 2024

This online symposium explores research and practice in computer-assisted language learning (CALL) and technology-enhanced language teaching (TELT). It is designed to support you in understanding, implementing, and researching CALL and TELT.

The symposium is open to everyone (both members and non-members of APACALL). If you wish to present a paper at the symposium, you need to be an APACALL member first. Non-members are welcome to join APACALL (free membership) by completing and submitting a membership application form through the APACALL website (<https://www.apacall.org/>).

[Call for Proposals]

APACALL invites proposals (consisting of a title of no more than 15 words and an abstract of 100-150 words each) for presentations related to CALL and TELT (15-minute Live Talk + 5-minute Q & A for each session). Potential presenters are asked to download and complete the Abstract Submission Form and then submit the completed form to the APACALL webmaster via email (webmaster@apacall.org) by 30 April 2024. Successful applicants will be notified by 31 May 2024.

Proposals are encouraged within the sub-themes below, but are not limited to:

- Artificial intelligence (AI) in language learning and teaching
- Extended reality (XR) in language learning and teaching
- Machine translation in language learning and teaching
- Digital games in language learning and teaching
- Digital tools and resources for language learning and teaching
- Language learners and teachers in digital environments.
